

Dr Ahsina Jahan is a young and dynamic Critical Care physician from Dhaka, Bangladesh.

She is attached to Brahmanbaria Icu specialized hospital as Consultant and In-charge of ICU and Emergency department. She has an overall experience of 13 years in ICU. She is a member of different international societies of critical care. She has organized and participated in numerous academic seminars, papers and projects, worked alongside and collaborated with reputed faculty of National and International fame. She was the organizing secretary of “1st India-Bangladesh Conference in Critical Care 2019”. She has contributed as an author in the latest AKI guidelines for ISCCM and as an Editorial Board member for the Critical Care Communications Journal and Newsletter 2021-22 and 2022-2023. Her interest areas in critical care medicine are hemodynamic management, invasive and non-invasive ventilation, RRT and ECMO support, trauma management, sepsis and infectious diseases. She has authored many chapters in international Critical Care related books. She is a nominated member, board of directors, of the International Society of Intravenous Anesthesia (SIVA). She has achieved prestigious Presidential citation award of ISCCM on 2023. She was in scientific committee of Criticare 2022. She is a brand ambassador and faculty of RRT workshop in Euroasia 2022, organized jointly by ISCCM and ESICM held in June 2022 in Delhi. She is currently working and steering many research publications.

She has plenty of experience of speaking in academic webinars, seminars, panel discussions, didactic presentations and brain-storming sessions, collaborating with international experts of repute, delivering insightful and thought-provoking information on different aspects of critical care.