

Dr. Amrita Bhattacharyya is a critical care consultant specializing in respiratory critical care. She holds an MBBS from Medical College Kolkata, an MD in Anesthesiology from SGPGI, Lucknow, and a DM in Critical Care Medicine from AIIMS, New Delhi. Fluent in English, Hindi, and Bengali, she currently serves as the respiratory ICU in-charge and a critical care consultant at C. K Birla Hospitals, Kolkata.

Her research is well-documented in several peer-reviewed journals, with significant contributions on thromboelastography in critically ill patients and the effects of Vitamin D on sepsis outcomes. Dr.

Bhattacharyya is also a prominent speaker at major national and regional medical conferences, including NAPCON , CRITICON, AIIMS PULMOCRIT , and has authored book chapters on various critical care topics.

Passionate about teaching and mentoring, Dr. Bhattacharyya is dedicated to training juniors and fellows. She regularly leads workshops and training sessions, including a DNB critical care program.