

ABSTRACT : DR. ARVINDRAN ALAGA

How To Approach The Chronic Cough

Coughing is one of the primary signs of respiratory disorders and may also indicate a serious non-respiratory condition.

One of the most typical diagnoses for doctors working in hospitals or primary care environments is a persistent cough in an adult who does not smoke.

This condition has a wide range of possible causes.

The purpose of this talk is to emphasize a useful strategy for treating cough at the outset for primary care doctors.