

DR CHOW YOK WAI
MD(USM), MRCP(UK), FRCP(Edinburgh),

Dr Chow is currently Consultant Nephrologist and Physician in Pantai Hospital Ayer Keroh, Melaka. He graduated in 1999 with Doctor of Medicine (MD) from University of Science Malaysia.

In 2003, he obtained his membership into the Royal College of Physicians of United Kingdom after completing his Internal Medicine training in the New Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh, Scotland under Dr Robin Winney and Professor Neil Turner (University of Edinburgh).

Due to his outstanding achievements, he was subsequently offered a full scholarship by the Public Services Department of Malaysia to pursue advance nephrology training in the field of vasculitis in Addenbrooke's Hospital, Cambridge University Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust. He then worked as a Clinical Fellow of Nephrology under the mentorship of Dr David Jayne and Professor Kenneth Smith (Cambridge Institute For Medical Research), world-renowned experts in autoimmune disease. Dr Chow received training in all aspects of vasculitis and glomerulonephritides with particular emphasis on SLE, ANCA associated vasculitis and Behcet's Disease.

In 2011, due to his keen interest in clinical research, he was appointed expert panel to the Malaysian Dialysis and Transplantation registry. In 2016, he is appointed into the expert panel of the Malaysian Dialysis Quality Standards, formulating haemodialysis guidelines for the country. In addition he sits in the medical advisory board of Fresenius Medical Care and is key opinion leader for many pharmaceutical companies.